Matej rides his skateboard through the city and wants to spend a quiet day with his friends. But today nothing works out the way he'd imagined. His best friend isn't home and he can't seem to hook up with his buddies. Buddies? What's wrong with everybody?

Synopsis

Matej rides his skateboard through the city. He wants to visit a friend at home, but he's not in. While in the hallway, he hears a man and a woman arguing and notices a bag sitting in front of the door with an MP3 player sticking out of the side pocket. Matej grabs the player and leaves. He rides to the boxing club and tries to sell the MP3 player to his friend Mhendi, but not only is Mhendi not interested in buying the device, but he's also quit smoking pot. He advises Matej to finally do the right thing. Matej leaves and wanders aimlessly through the streets. He cuts off a phone call from his mother after a short talk, then rides to a skate park underneath a bridge to meet a few friends. They drink, smoke pot and fool around. Matej is hot on Jasmine, but she ignores him completely. Jasmine is more interested in Nelson, who stages impressive jumps with his skateboard. Steve and his gang invite everyone to visit their club. Matej and the others accept. He wanders around the streets until the meeting. At the club, Matej meets Steve, Helly and Nelson, but his buddies from the skate park don't show up. Out of boredom Steve starts boasting about a warehouse containing the coolest brand-name goods, claiming that it is very easy to break in. Shortly afterwards, at the warehouse, Matej is given the task of climbing through a window to open a door from inside. However, someone coming home late thwarts the teenagers' plans and Steve and the couple run off leaving Matej desperately looking for a way out of the building. Unexpectedly, he winds up in a band's practice room where he is asked to sing...
